PHILLIP MEDHURST. A-Z OF ARTISTS IN THE BOWYER BIBLE

On October 14, 1840 The Times of London carried the following notice:

"There is at present, in the possession of Mrs. Parker of Golden Square, a copy of Macklin's Bible in forty-five large volumes, illustrated with nearly 7000 engravings from the age of Michael Angelo to that of Reynolds and West. The work also contains about 200 original drawings or vignettes by Louthembourg. The prints and etchings include the works of Raffaele, Marc Antonio, Albert Durer, Callot, Rembrandt, and other masters, consisting of representations of nearly every fact, circumstance, and object mentioned in the Holy Scriptures. There are, moreover, designs of trees, plants, flowers, quadrupeds, birds, fishes, and insects; such as, besides fossils, have been adduced in proof of the universal Deluge. The most authentic Scripture atlases are bound up with the volumes. The Bible was the property of the late Mr. Bowyer the publisher, who collected and arranged the engravings, etchings, and drawings at great expense and labour; and he is said to have been engaged for upwards of thirty years in rendering it perfect. It was insured at the Albion Insurance Office for £3000."

The Bowyer Bible is now in the Bolton Museum, Lancashire, England.

Robert Bowyer (1758-1834) was a miniature-painter and print-publisher, proprietor of the Historic Gallery illustrating Hume's History (founded 1792, collapsed 1807). He also produced the grangerised edition of the Macklin Bible referred to as The Bowyer Bible (1791-5). Thomas Macklin (c.1760 - 1800) was a printseller and publisher. He began his series of "British Poets" in 1787, and the "Macklin Bible" in 1790. According to the Dictionary of National Biography, "[t]he Macklin Bible endures as the most ambitious edition produced in Britain, often pirated but never rivalled."

Aldegrevier, Heinrich. 1502?-1555/1561. Paderborn, Soest (Westphalia). en. et. 7 prints

Engraver, painter and designer of woodcuts. Paderborn 1501/2 – Soest 1555/61. His family name was Trippenmeker (clog-maker). He became a citizen of Soest in 1527 and was the most important artist active in sixteenth century Westphalia, yet nothing is recorded of his training. Many of his figures reveal the influence of the Antwerp Mannerists, and he may have spent his "Wanderjahre" in the Netherlands; other sources for his work include, in particular, the prints of Albrecht Dürer, the engravings of Lucas van Leyden (1494?-1533) and, for his ornamental prints, those of Zoan Andrea (active c. 1475-1505). Many of his engravings, made in the manner of the so-called "Little Masters" (see Georg Pencz and Sebald Beham), were highly influential. His ornamental engravings, about one-third of his total output of just under three hundred known prints, were widely used by other artists and craftsmen well into the seventeenth century, and his figurative prints also reappear occasionally on glass-paintings, metal and stoneware. He may have practised as a goldsmith and in 1552 he is known to have cut silver seals for the Duke of Cleves. Only two paintings are firmly attributed to him: the wings and predella of the 'Marienaltar', of c. 1525/6 and the 'Portrait of Graf Phillip III von Waldeck', of 1537. A number of his preparatory drawings for engravings have survived, of which the largest single collection is in the Rijksmuseum, Amsterdam. Aldegrevier's more mannered style can always be distinguished from other engravers by his slim, attenuated figures and puckered, agitated drapery. His striking engraved portraits of Jan van Leyden, the leader of the Anabaptists, a radical religious sect, and his colleague Bernd Knipperdolling (Bartsch, 182-3) were widely copied and are among his best-known works; they were probably commissioned by the Bishop of Münster to commemorate the sitters' deaths in.

Augustin Calmet was a celebrated exegetist; born at Ménil-la-Horgne, near Commercy, Lorraine, France, in 1672; died at the abbey of Senones, near Saint-Dié, 25 Oct., 1757. He was educated at the Benedictine priory of Breuil, and in 1688 joined the same order in the Abbey of St-Mansuy at Toul, where he was admitted to profession 23 Oct. of the following year and began his studies. Coming across the smaller Hebrew grammar by Buxtorf and some other Hebrew books in the abbey of Münster, he undertook the study of the language, assisted by the Protestant pastor Faber. After his ordination, 17 March, 1696, he was appointed to teach philosophy and theology at the Abbey of Moyen-Moutier and remained there until 1704. Here with the help of his brethren he began to gather the material for his commentary of the Bible, which he completed at Münster in Alsace where he was sent in 1704 as sub-prior and professor of exegesis. Calmet was a pious religious as well as a learned man. In recognition of these qualities he was elected prior of Lay-Saint-Christophe in 1715, abbot of St-Léopold at Nancy in 1719, and of Senones in 1729; he was also twice entrusted with the office of president or superior general of the congregation. Benedict XIII wished to confer episcopal dignity upon him, but his humility could not be brought to accept the honour. Calmet remained abbot of Senones until his death in 1757 in Paris. The first volume of Calmet's Commentary appeared in Paris in 1707 with the title "Commentaire littéral sur tous les livres de l'Ancien et du Nouveau Testament"; the last of the twenty-three quarto volumes, owing to various delays, was published only in 1716. To satisfy the demand for the work a second edition in twenty-six volumes quarto was issued 1714-1720, and a third, enlarged, edition in nine volumes folio 1724-1726. 4th ed. 1729. A Latin translation by Mansi was published at Lucca, 1730-1738, in nine folio volumes, with new editions at Augsburg (1756, eight volumes folio) and Würzburg (1789, nineteen volumes quarto); another Latin translation by F. Vecelli appeared at Venice and Frankfort (1730, six volumes folio). Closely connected with the commentary is his "Dictionnaire Historique et Critique Chronologique, Géographique et Littéral de la Bible" (1722; Supplement, 1728), which is chiefly a collection of the explanatory remarks in the commentary. Many editions and many translations of it have appeared, among them a good translation into English by D'Oyly (1732), and one by Taylor (1795, 1800) with a worthless appendix (American reprint of Taylor, 1812). The best-known American edition is that of Edward Robinson (1832), in which Calmet's material is condensed and revised. This dictionary was the first work of the kind, and was the point of departure for all others. "Dictionnaire historique, critique, chronologique, géographique et littéral de la Bible" (Paris, Emery, Saugrain & P. Martin, 1720, two vols. folio), a supplement (also folio) was added in 1728. An improved and enlarged edition in four folio volumes was published in 1730, which has several times been reprinted, the last time in Migne, "Encyclopédie théologique", I-IV. It, too, was translated into Latin and the principal European languages. The English translation by D'Oyley and Colson (1732), revised and with additions by Taylor (1795), went through many editions in a larger and compendious form. A series of 160 engravings covering a vast array of Jewish customs, festivals, and biblical objects were specially commissioned to further explicate the text. He was the first prominent Catholic theologian who abandoned the allegorical and mystical method of interpretation, and undertook to give the literal sense of the Bible words. The value of this book lies, however, not so much in its exegesis as in the dissertations attached to it, which treat such topics as Hebrew poetry, music, weights and measures, medicine, marriage customs, burial customs, military organization, circumcision, the Sanhedrin, and Hebrew schools and sects, and are, for his time, remarkably full and judicious, though now superseded.

Loutherbourg, Philip James de. 1740-1812. Strasbourg, Fulda, Paris, London. et. The entry in "Bryan's Dictionary of Painters and Engravers enlarged by George Stanley" (page 488) says, "This ingenious artist was born at Strasburg about the year 1734. When Mr. Macklin projected his publication of the Bible, Mr de Loutherbourg was engaged to exercise his powers as an historical painter; on which occasion he painted two pictures, representing the Angel destroying the Assyrian (sic) Host, and the Universal Deluge; the latter was considered as his best performance in that department. Mr. De Loutherbourg was a member of the Royal Academy of London, and resided the latter part of his life at Chiswick, where he died, in 1812." 255 prints

HEAD-PIECE TO THE WISDOM OF SOLOMON. BOWYER BIBLE 25.3157

Explanation of the vignettes in Cadell & Davies: "The Head-piece to the Book of WISDOM is taken from the seventh chapter, wherein Solomon philosophises on his own entrance into this mortal state; 'when he drew in the common air, the first voice that he uttered was crying, as all others do: he was nursed in swaddling clothes, and that with care.' (See verses 3, 4, &c.) Emblems of royal power lie on one side of the infant Solomon, and on the other, implements of agriculture; allusive to the regal dignity which he attained, and his assiduous cultivation of nature. The radiance from above, intimates the favour that shone from Heaven upon this wisest of sovereigns, from his very birth."

Jan Luyken's son Caspar was trained as an engraver by his father. He worked closely with his father AND specialised particularly in architectural backgrounds to the large compositions on which he collaborated in the Luyken workshop. These prints illustrate Jan's work (top) as compared with the somewhat lesser talent of his son Caspar. (Photos: Harry Kossuth)

Avec Privilege de nos Seigneurs les etats de Holland et de West-Frise". Amsterdam/Antwerp. Pierre Mortier. 1700. Dutch translation title: "Historie des ouden en nieuwen testaments, verrykt met meer dan vierhonderd Printverbeeldingen in koper gesneden". Pieter Mortier. 1700. Commonly known as "Mortier's Great Bible", it is actually a print bible, with full-page engraved plates, showing biblical scenes described on the facing pages. Above all prints is a text in Dutch and in French, since they were also meant for a French edition of the same bible, published at the same time. 2 parts in 2 vols. 141 full-page plates engraved after Jan Luyken, Bernard Picart, I. de Latere, J. Goeree, Otto Elliger, David van der Plaets, etc., and engraved by Jan Luyken, J. Baptist, H. Elant, J. Mulder, Van der Gouwen, A. de Blois, etc. for the first volume; 73 full-page engraved plates, after Otto Elliger, Bernard Picart and David van der Plaets, and 29 large engraved vignettes all drawn and engraved by Jan Luyken, five double-page engraved maps of the world, of the Land of the Patriarchs, the exodus from Egypt, Israel and the travels of Paul in the second volume. reader, that he paid much attention to finding well qualified artists to engrave the plates, and that he also had a new letter made, especially for this Bible edition. Two of the three leading contemporary illustrators worked on the engravings for the Bible, Jan Luyken and Bernard Picart. Jan Luyken was the author of the vignettes in the text, and of 28 full-page plates. Luyken also added to the engraved frontispiece.

Passero Passeri, Pass, Pass Rom, Passe Roma, Bernadino. Fl. 1580. Rome. 136 prints. Jerome Nadal (1507-1580), a Spaniard from Majorca, was one of the first ten members of the Society of Jesus (a.k.a. the Jesuits). For many years he served as the personal representative or "delegate" of the founder, St. Ignatius of Loyola (1491-1556), in visiting Jesuit houses throughout Europe, especially to explain and implement the Constitutions of the Society of Jesus. Ignatius himself urged Nadal to compile and distribute an illustrated guide for prayerful meditation on the Gospels, in the tradition of the Spiritual Exercises, although the work was not completed until after both men had died. Nadal selected the biblical scenes to be included, commissioned and directed the layout of the illustrations, and composed notes to accompany each scene. With the cooperation and support of Antwerp publishers Christophe Plantin and Martinus Nutius, 153 engravings were eventually produced by Bernardino Passeri, Marten de Vos, and Jerome and Anton Wierix. In 1593 these illustrations were published in a volume entitled "Evangelicae Historiae Imagines" ("Illustrations of the Gospel Stories"), arranged in chronological order of the life and ministry of Jesus. In 1594 and 1595 they were again published in larger volumes, entitled "Adnotationes et Meditationes in Evangelia" ("Notes and Meditations on the Gospels"), with more extensive accompanying text, and rearranged according to the order of readings used in the liturgical year, as prescribed in the Roman Missal. These books became very influential in Counter-Reformation Europe, since the illustrations were among the first to use the new techniques of "perspective drawing," which more realistically depicted three-dimensional shapes in two-dimensional drawings, such as used in the scientific drawings of the day. These techniques made the Gospel stories much more vibrant and realistic, and thus more effective as aides for evangelization and meditation.

CREATION OF EVE. GENESIS 2:22
RAPHAEL'S BIBLE

Raphael. Sanzio, Raffaello Raphael's Bible. 1483-1520. Urbino. 260 prints. Part of the entry in "Bryan's Dictionary of Painters and Engravers enlarged by George Stanley" (page 677). says "Raffaello Sanzio, di Urbino . . . . . was the son of Giovanni Sanzio, a painter of little celebrity, born at Urbino in 1483. Page 679. Having thus decorated the three principal apartments, his attention was next turned to the embellishment of the loggie of the Vatican, of which the architecture had been begun by Bramante, and was finished by Raffaello. These were chiefly executed from his designs by his disciples, Giulio Romano, Giovanni Francesco Penni, Perino del Vaga, Pellegrino da Modena, Polidoro di Caravaggio, &c. The objects most deserving of attention are the thirteen small ceilings, each containing four subjects of sacred history, the first of which, representing the Creation, was painted by himself, as the model to be followed by his scholars; and the whole was retouched and harmonised by Raffaello, as was his custom. This series of subjects from the Scriptures has been frequently engraved, and is generally denominated Raffaello's Bible. . . . . He was attacked by a fever in 1520, and having, as is supposed, been improperly treated by his physicians, he died in that year, on Good Friday, the 6th of April, which was his birthday, at the age of 37.
